

"I'M A PROOFREADER"

(To the tune of "I'm A Believer")

Parody Lyrics Copyright (C) 1992-2002 Lawrence Savell

I thought law meant going to court and arguing
Just like Perry Mason on T.V.
Cross-examination
The witness at my feet
Winning all my cases
And Della Street.

Then I graduated
Now I'm A Proofreader
I spend my day
Hi-liter in hand
I'm a lawyer but, oh
I'm A Proofreader
I sit here reading all the time.

I thought law meant telling clients what to do
Telling what to buy and whom to sue
But I had it backwards
Clients do what they will
And they're always right
Long as they pay the bills.

Then I graduated
Now I'm A Proofreader
I spend my day
Hi-liter in hand
I'm a lawyer but, oh
I'm A Proofreader
I sit here reading all the time.

My professors told me
Follow what we say
I followed Evelyn Wood
Now I make more than they.

Then I graduated
Now I'm A Proofreader
I spend my day
Hi-liter in hand
I'm a lawyer but, oh
I'm A Proofreader
I sit here reading all the time.
