

VOLUME X
NUMBER 1

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY

LAWCAST®

FOR THE WEEK OF
JANUARY 12, 2004
total running time: 60:47

Outline

Website: www.lawcast.com E-mail: info@lawcast.com Call: 1-800-LAWCAST(529-2278)

Digest

CD Track: #10

N.Y. litigator Lawrence Savell releases update to his legal humor CD of holiday tunes. In 1998, New York City litigator Lawrence Savell released a compact disk entitled, "The Lawyer's Holiday Album." The album included a parody of the classic, "Let it Snow," as well as the original songs, "All I Want for Christmas is a Stomach Lining," "Santa v. Acme Sleigh," and the "Jingle Bells" parody, "Bill Those Hours."

Now, Savell is at it again. He has released an updated CD with three new songs, all of which, he says, were inspired by his experiences in his practice at Chadbourne & Parke LLP.

Savell says the most recent new song, "Rainmaker Reindeer," talks about business developments. Another new tune, "A Million Christmas Trees," is about document production which Savell acknowledges, "is something I spend an increased amount of my practice doing." The third song on the updated disk is "Billing on Christmas Eve," which Savell says focuses on "the sacrifices all lawyers have to make, and the hours we have to put in."

"There's tons of lawyer jokes, most of which are disparaging to lawyers," Savell points out. "What's a rarity is someone who is a lawyer, and is going through all of this to try to create humor for those who are also going through it can understand and enjoy."

Excerpts of Savell's songs can be downloaded at www.LawTunes.com, where his CDs can also be purchased. In this age of online music file-sharing, Savell says he is not worried that his songs will be swapped. Instead, he claimed that he would be "flattered."

LEGAL BUSINESS ■ HUMOR

See also, "Litigator sings 'Let 'Em Sue,' and other lawyers' songs of holiday cheer," Litigation LAWCAST®, Dec. 21, 1998, Digest.