

Smith v. Yummy Chocolate Milk Company

You are the lawyer for Yummy Chocolate Milk Company, which makes Yummy Chocolate Milk.

Buddy Smith likes to drink chocolate milk. Buddy also likes to play softball. Recently, Buddy's batting average has been dropping.

Buddy has sued Yummy, claiming that drinking chocolate milk caused the drop in his batting average. Buddy wants Yummy to pay for the cost of batting lessons.

What arguments can you make for your client Yummy in this case?

Are there any questions you want to ask?

Is there any more information you need?

Lawrence Savell
Chadbourn & Parke LLP
30 Rockefeller Plaza
New York, NY 10112
(212) 408-5100
lsavell@chadbourn.com
www.lawrencesavell.com