CALIFORNIA LAWYER | FEBRUARY 2003

COVER: THE LAST LIBERAL | 16

Gun lovers, flag wavers, and death penalty proponents find a common foe in Ninth Circuit Judge Stephen Reinhardt. An unrepentant liberal—and close friend of conservative colleague Alex Kozinski—Reinhardt keeps the faith and ignores the circuit's record as the most reversed in the nation.

by Bill Blum

MALPRACTICE INSURANCE REPORT | 23

Premiums have risen 50 percent, and some carriers have ditched the state. Shop around, experts say, but don't be too eager to hop around.

by Lucia Hwang, Gwendolyn Mariano, and Deborah Rosenthal

THE DEFENSE FIGHTS BACK | 11

Seventeen years ago, Californians passed Proposition 65 to protect consumers against hazardous chemicals, either by requiring warning labels or, in the case of drinking water, banning the offending substances altogether. Now, however, a number of court rulings are encouraging corporations to fight back.
